President's Message:

Independence was not handed to India on a plate. It was achieved as the result of a long struggle fought by all Indians. Some were grouped in various organisations, such as the Gadhhar Party and the Kooka Movement under the guidance of Satguru Ram Singh, a great preacher of the use of non-cooperation and non-violence for political ends.

A few famous names that stand out particularly are those of Subash Chanderbose, who formed the INA, also Sardar Bhaghat Singh who kissed the gallows giving his life for his country; the ultimate sacrifice. Also Lala Lajpat Rai, Nehru and Gandhi - they all played their part in the struggle for Independence.

Hindus, Muslims, Sikhs and Christians alike all fought together to make this day possible. Religious differences lost any importance in comparison with the greater good of the country. And why should this be any less relevant today? The cause of India should supercede all other causes.

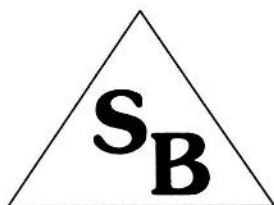

India has made good economic and political progress during the years since Independence. But this has fuelled resentment from some areas, most notably from dictators who work for their own personal achievement rather than the good of their country. For this reason the rulers of Pakistan seek to provoke trouble in the Punjab and Kashmir.

Here in the UK we too are affected by events taking place in that part of the world, but we must understand and look at events in our country of abode and learn from them. At a time when european countries are uniting in order to strengthen and survive, the divisions in our own country can only lead to our enslavement. So I pray for unity.

I would like to congratulate you all on this day and I request that you take some time to think about the country that you come from. There are forces at work that are trying to mislead the people through false information. I emlore you to act, through arranging conferences and other events, to make the facts known to the people in our host country. Only then can we hope to redress the lies and false propaganda that continues to cause suffering and pain to our fellow Indians back home.

MESSAGE

I extend my greetings to the office bearers and members of the Thames Valley Overseas Indian Congress on the occasion of India's 48th Independence Day celebrations.

The message of India to the world has been the message of a harmonious, tolerant, multicultural and multireligious society committed to the values of freedom, fraternity and human dignity.

There is a need to disseminate the value system which defines India as a civilization. That value system is threatened by mindless forces of terrorism funded and fuelled from across our borders and by reckless divisive violence on our own soil. We must spare no effort and be prepared to make every sacrifice in the cause of India and its freedom.

I wish the Thames Valley Overseas Indian Congress all success in their celebrations,

Sarup Singh Seehra

We are gathered here today to celebrate the 48th anniversary of Indian Independence. It is an occasion in which to remember and pay homage to our great people who sacrificed their lives in order that this day may be possible. It is also an occasion in which to reflect on India's enormous achievements in the fields of economic and social development, and to seriously review the effect of decisive communal forces within and outside of India, and to resolve to maintain and strengthen the unity of our people both in India and abroad.

India is the largest secular democracy in the world and during the last 48 years it has developed into one of the leading industrial nations in the world. She has not only achieved self-sufficiency in agricultural and industrial production, but is now a net exporter of her produce. All this has been achieved through a stable political environment and the unity, personal commitment and hard work of the people of India.

Indians living abroad have also achieved commendable success in all walks of life in their adoptive countries and are now able to influence political thinking in those countries. They also contribute to the development of India by investing in Indian industries.

India has unfortunately seen an upsurge in the negative communal forces which have caused dents in the secular fibre of our society. We must ensure that such forces, whether from minority or majority communities within society, are not allowed to poison the minds of the ordinary people. It should be understood by all that freedom entails certain responsibilities. The constitution of India guarantees justice, liberty, equality and fraternity to all the people of India and our politicians must not lose sight of this.

The present situation in Kashmir has shown how foreign mercenaries and other terrorist groups trained abroad can disrupt and destroy the lives of ordinary lives of law abiding citizens. We all know that Kashmir became an integral part of India when, under the Indian Independence Act of 1947, Maharaja Hari Singh of Jammu and Kashmir signed the Instrument of Accession on 26th October 1947.

Pakistan professes to be the saviour of Muslims and plays this card in Kashmir, despite the fact that within Pakistan itself we have seen hatred and violence between different sects of Islam. It seems that Pakistan has never forgotten the defeats it suffered to India over Kashmir and the liberation of Bengalis from the West Pakistan colonial yoke.

Pakistan continues in its campaign of 'dirty tricks' against India through its agents in western countries, and so it is not surprising that a small number of ill-informed British politicians should fall prey to their propaganda. We must let these politicians know that any dispute regarding Kashmir is a matter for the governments of India and Pakistan to resolve through peaceful means - not terrorism.

We respect and value the memories of great Indians who sacrificed their lives in the cause of Independence. Those great Indians did not view themselves as Hindus, Muslims, Sikhs or Christians, but simply as Indians.

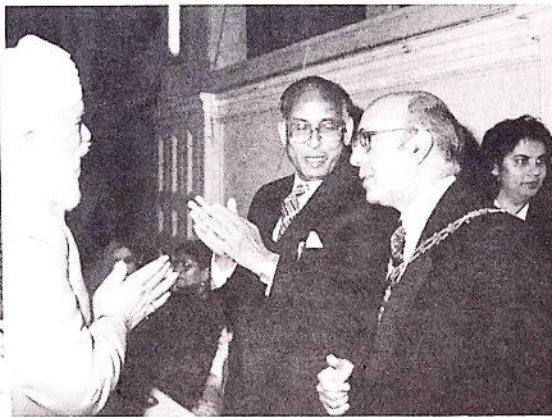

It is time to strengthen our resolve in order to build closer links and work together to combat negative forces. Through our strength of character and our belief in one humanity we can be a lighthouse to the rest of the world in these difficult times. Our Indian heritage demands that we stand up and be counted. Perhaps we should remember the words of Einstein when he said, "Everything that is created is really great and inspiring is created by individuals who can labour in freedom."

The TVOIC have held a number of meetings involving politicians, statutory bodies, the police and the public to discuss matters of mutual concern. We have also taken deputations on important issues to the Home Office and the Prime Minister's office. We have also held a number of social functions including Indian Republic and Independence Day celebrations.

We are firmly committed to the continued development of our activities and the fostering of new links in the Thames Valley area.

I would like to thank the members, associates and supporters of TVOIC who have given their valuable time, effort and money in order that its constructive voluntary work may continue.

The Thames Valley Overseas Indian Congress was formed last year with a view to serve the interests of the Indian Communities living in the counties of Berkshire, Buckinghamshire and Oxfordshire.

It is an attempt to unite the communities in the Thames Valley area under one umbrella organisation and its objectives are:

1. To secure, Protect and Safeguard, All Rights, Privileges and facilities for persons of Indian origin living and working in the Thames Valley Area of the U.K., through peaceful and constitutional means.
2. To promote, encourage and undertake activities for social, cultural and welfare purposes in order to achieve better understanding and integration between different sections of the community.
3. To provide a suitable forum for projection and presentation of common problems and view points of the Indian community both to the Governments of the U.K., and India through appropriate channels.
4. To establish contacts and alliances with other organisations with similar objectives.
5. To provide support and help to under privileged members of the community.

Since our formation we have had a number of social functions and have taken deputations to the High commission of India and other agencies on issues of concern to the Indian Community.

I am sure that with the help and co-operation of the community we will become an effective and popular organisation in the Thames Valley Area.

Jaswant Singh Bains

Indians expect a lot from the people of Indian origins who are most respectable citizens and NRIs in European and American continents and throughout the world as well. But the place of Britain is the most important one as our greatest freedom fighters and Father of the Nation as well were educated in London like Mahatma Gandhi, Subhash Chandra Bose, Pt. Jawaharlal Nehru, Vir Savarkar etc. and who were very much inspired of the democratic system of the Britain and the great contribution of people of British and Irish origin like AO Hume, founder of the Congress Party and Sister Nivedita, Mrs. Annie Besant who all shall remain immortal in the history of Indian movement for independence.

It is a matter of great pride that number of Indian origins are playing a very important roles in the civic, social, political and intellectual spheres of Great Britain and more people of Indian origins are representing British people in British Parliament and are acting as Councillors and Mayors in Great Britain.

India will always feel proud on those sons and daughters like you and other members of the Reception Committee of this function who have always acted as great ambassadors of our great Indian culture, way of life, language etc. to spread in foreign land.

I wish the function a big success.

Jaswant Singh Bains
Vice President

May I congratulate you on this 48th auspicious Indian Independence Day.

We must carve out a new path to meet the present needs of society. The present generation believes in the shifts in society that stimulate a desire to achieve its cherished goals in the modern world.

The people of India epitomise a liberal and resilient society. The culture of India has retained its own essence of spiritualism and Dharam inspite of an amalgam of various foreign and alien influences. Our culture has the potential to adapt all these foreign elements to its own fold.

Now the time has come when we could take care of inter-religious unity which can encourage and promote conflict to convergence, fanaticism to mutual respect, competition to creative interaction.

The secularism does not imply to single out and promote any personal laws for an individual community or claim the disintegration of the country on the basis of any religion. This approach is not only divisive but also detrimental to the health of the nation.

To appease is cowardice. The strength of conviction lies in convincing your fellow citizens to follow a course that is in the interest OF the nation and its masses.

We the people of India are the arbiters of the Indian politics and its destiny is in our hands. We must be ready and willing to make every sacrifice to secure the interest of our nation.

An Open Letter to Overseas Indians

The Indian calendar is filled with a multitude of cultural, religious and social festivals throughout the year. From the bright lights of Diwali to the dancing and music of Bhasaki, Indians have for centuries come together in their homes, their temples and in the streets. Ancient traditions have been kept alive from year to year as young and old join each other in celebration.

Forty-eight years ago India freed itself from the yoke of slavery. Hundreds and thousands of Indians sacrificed their lives. What was the motivating force for those brave and committed Indians? What could possibly have pushed so many to make the ultimate sacrifice? To these Indian heroes there could be nothing more abhorrent to the human spirit than slavery. To live in a state of human slavery would not be to live, but merely to exist.

And yet we see that in our own community, everybody joins together to celebrate Diwali - and even Easter and Christmas which are of no real significance to Indians. Yet the most important celebration, one marked by sacrifice and struggle, fails to bring the whole community together as one. There are even individuals who, for reasons known best to themselves, stoop so low as to create obstacles in the path of unity. People who outwardly profess to support unity and yet act in a way which contradicts this.

On this day, of all days, surely all Indians should come together under one flag. Is it not incompatible with the spirit of reconciliation and pride symbolised by Independence Day that five different functions should take place in the same town but under different roofs? Not only should we come together to show pride in our nation and everything it stands for, but we should overcome rifts and divisions in honour of the Hindus, Muslims, Sikhs and Christians who gave their lives and suffered in the cause of the greater good. To justify and propagate such divisions is ultimately to dishonour our heroes.

We see at this very time on our television screens and in our newspapers how terrorists are succeeding in their attempts to take the lives of innocent people, citing India as the perpetrator of evil. It is our duty to come forward and explain the real facts in order that we may counter the lies and false information that threatens to pollute and obscure the truth about India.

On this day we must pledge our support to our country by telling the truth behind the headlines regarding Kashmir, the Punjab and India. We must defend ourselves from our detractors and uphold our good name among our neighbours and to our friends, especially within our host community.

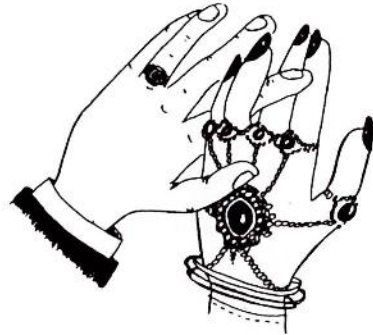

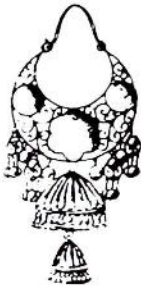

It gives me great pleasure to see so much energy and pride put into honouring our ancient ancestors at Diwali and other times of the year. I wish we could do the same to celebrate this historic day with the same zeal, enthusiasm and unity. We owe it both to our ancestors, to ourselves and to generations to come.

Sat-Bhambra
